Yanks Ram Raid Korea, 3 Mi. Ahead Bonin Isles

By WES GALLAGHER

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, June 16 (AP)—Lt. Gen. Omar N. Bradley's American troops, ramming home another blow to cut off Cherbourg, have advanced to within 2½ miles east of St. Sauveur, a junction controlling two of the three roads leading to the nearly beleaguered port, Allied headquarters announced today.

The Americans marked up a gain of two and one-half miles west of Carentan after having previously reached Reigneville, three miles to the northeast of St. Sauveur.

Plugging away on a 10-mile front and rapping out repeated gains despite stubborn resistance, the Americans were now within 11 miles of the Cherbourg peninsula's west coast beaches. Their spearhead was 17 miles below the big port.

While Bradley's Yanks still fought a ding-dong battle with Germans in the streets of Montebourg, 14 miles southeast of Cherbourg on the Allied right flank, the British were engaged in stiff tank battles with Germans in force two miles south of Caumont. This is about 20 miles inland, the deepest Allied penetration.

TANKS IN GREAT CLASH
Tank battles still raged also around Caen and Tilly-sur-Seuilles on the Allied left flank.

Meanwhile, headquarters reported the worst weather over the battlefields since D-Day, with a 20-mile-an-hour northwest wind blowing on the beaches—the only place the Allies now hold for the reinforcement and supply of their invasion armies.

Despite the weather, however, the U. S. battalions Texas and Nevada and cruiser Augusta were reported arching shells deep inland to support the troops driving across the peninsula.

A few miles south of the American spearhead pointed at St. Sauveur was another column pushing toward La Haye du Puits, a road junction controlling all remaining roads into Cherbourg. The Americans were last reported six miles from this objective.

A late dispatch from Gen. Eisenhower's advanced command post said it was estimated 300,000 German troops had been thrown against the Normandy beachhead.

This dispatch said four German

Today, the Jap radio announced "an enemy task force" attacked (arrow, insert map) the Bonin islands, midway between the Marianas and Tokyo.

Allies Push Drive To Tyrrhenian Sea

By SID FEDER

ROME, June 16 (AP)—The Allies smashed forward from the Adriatic to the Tyrrhenian sea today, some troops advancing as much as 25 miles in 24 hours, and capturing such important highway towns as Acquafredda, Narni and Terni along the way.

Farthest advance came by the Eighth Army in the capture of Fodi, approximately 60 airline miles northeast of Rome, and only 85 miles south of the Pisa-Rimini line, where the fleeing Germans may make a stand.

There has been no sign of any organized enemy defense in front of a line running from Pisa on the west coast through the city of Florence to Rimini on the Adriatic.

The Fifth Army pushed above Lake Bolsena and captured Acquafredda, about seven miles north on Highway 2.

The Eighth Army captured the important industrial and communications center of Terni, 45 miles northwest of Rome, and the highway junction town of Narni, about seven miles southwest of Terni.

Other Eighth Army troops advanced 10 miles north of Orvieto, and in the Adriatic sector of the Nazis have withdrawn so rapidly that the Allied troops have been able to maintain only a slender contact with the enemy.

The Japanese radio announced the Bonin and Korea strikes a few hours after the electrifying news of the B-29 air assault against Japan itself. Almost simultaneously with the Superfortress raid the Navy task force reportedly struck at two Bonin islands, the innermost barriers guarding Japan from the Central Pacific. Tokyo characteristically said damage was "extremely slight."

NEAR SAIPAN'S CHIEF TOWN
In the Korea raid "we suffered no losses," Tokyo said. There was no Allied confirmation of either raid.

The Saipan invaders advanced from their beachhead under the protection of warship guns and rocket-firing planes. They captured Agincourt point on the island's southwest coast, moved forward two miles to seize a small community and stood within five miles of Garapan, Saipan's biggest town.

Adm. Chester W. Nimitz last night reported "fighting is heavy but good progress is being made against well organized defenses." Tokyo claimed 1800 American casualties.

The Saipan invasion—putting Allied sea and air power within 1500 miles of Japan and the Philippines—was the core of the suddenly erupting battles spread out more than 3000 miles from the Kuriles to Truk. Exploitation of this Marianas island by Nimitz, perhaps as a base for the newly-unveiled Superfortresses, would directly menace Japan.

JAP FLEET MISSING
Missing from the picture of this new turn in the war was the Japanese fleet, which Nimitz has now impaled on the horns of this dilemma: To fight for vital defenses or to hide out and let the Americans take them without sea interference. With the raid into the Bonins—within fighter range of Japan's mainland—the question becomes of immediate and painful urgency to Tokyo's admirals.

Gen. MacArthur lent powerful aid to Nimitz' 1100-mile westward leap into Saipan. He sent heavy bombers winging up from the Admiralty Islands for a smashing raid at Truk. One hundred eighty-six tons of bombs fell on the now by-passed fortress. Nine Zeros were shot down. MacArthur's bombers also made the first land-based attack on Yap, cable center and air base midway between Palau and the Marianas.

China's mounting importance as a major airbase was also pointed up in U. S. bomber attacks near Shanghai at the mouth of the Yangtze. Three freighters were damaged. One was sunk, another damaged off Hong Kong by 14th Air Force planes.

Maj. Gen. Chennault's fliers also joined the Chinese fight to save Changsha, striking at railyards and other installations along the Hankow-Canton railroad. Japs crossed the last river guarding the city and Chungking admitted the city was in great danger.

Bold Allied forces carrying the Pacific war to Japan's front doorstep supported their Saipan invasion today, enemy broadcasts said, with an unprecedented task force assault against the Bonin islands, 600 to 700 miles from Tokyo, and with an air raid on Korea in the heart of the enemy's Asiatic empire.

An Imperial headquarters communique broadcast by Domei said planes from the force struck at two of the islands—Chichi Jima, in the northern section of the group, and Iwo Jima, 100 miles to the southeast. The Jap broadcasts claimed 17 raiding planes were shot down.

Swarms of Robot Planes Lash Britain

By LEWIS HAWKINS

LONDON, June 16 (AP)—While German planes without pilots, ghostly and death-spitting, streaked across the southern English sky today, smashing targets at random and keeping ground guns crackling, the Germans proclaimed this fantastic "secret" weapon as an instrument of vengeance for what German cities suffered under the crushing weight of Allied aerial might.

These bizarre, flame-scattering robot bombers began their eerie attacks last night, descending on southern Britain by the dozens, for the first time since the 1940 blitz the ground defenses could be heard extensively in daylight, as the Germans continued their attacks in what seemed to be an enemy attempt to divert the world's—and their home front's—attention from the multiplying crises facing German arms on the battlefields of Europe.

An official announcement tonight said the robot planes continued the attack intermittently throughout the day, although on a smaller scale than last night, adding that "incidents have occurred at several places in southern England and damage and casualties have been reported."

The German radio pictured the bombers as "novel weapons," which drop "superheavy explosives." A special note broadcast after the communique which announced the raids said "there is hardly one German who will not receive this news with the greatest satisfaction. The feelings of hatred and a burning wish for retaliation which dominate the German people have been kindled by our enemies in their terror crimes."

Another German commentator said: "The mills of the Gods grind slowly, but they grind exceedingly small. Perhaps our enemy did not believe reprisals would ever come to them. They laughed off the Fuehrer's words." Descriptions of the weapon varied considerably but all agreed that these self-destroying aircraft flew at terrific speed with an odd rumbling sound and in a straight line, were marked by bright lights, and shot flames from their exhausts—suggesting they might be jet or rocket-propelled.

Home Secretary Morrison told Commons the radio-controlled planes were first used Tuesday night.

The British ministry of home security issued this special announcement:

"When the engine of the pilotless aircraft stops and the light at the end of the machine seems to go out it may mean that an explosion is soon to follow, perhaps in five to ten seconds, so take refuge from the blast."

"Even those who are indoors should keep out of the way of the blast and use the most solid protection available."

TRAGEDY SCENE — Cross marks spot where the battered body of 10-year-old Frances McGrath was discovered today in underbrush 10 feet off Winter st., near the Scituate-Norwell line, and five miles from the summer home at Peggotty Beach, from which the little girl disappeared last Saturday.

$1500.00 Reward for Girl's Slayer

Rewards totaling $1500 in War Bonds will be paid for exclusive information to the Record-American leading to the apprehension of the slayer of 10-year-old Frances McGrath, whose battered body was found today.

These papers offered the first $1000 in War Bonds and an additional $500 was offered by a reader, who asked that his identity remain confidential.

The body of former Boston City Councilor John McGrath's daughter, who vanished last Saturday evening, was found in Winter st., Norwell, near the Scituate line, in a bruised and battered condition, evidence that she had been slain.

Exclusive information to these newspapers leading to the arrest of the little girl's slayer will bring a reward of $1500 in War Bonds. Call City Editor, Liberty 4000.

McGrath Girl Slain; Find Battered Body

By STANLEY CHIPMAN, FRANK McLEAN AND JAMES McENANEY

The fiendishly-ravished body of 10-year-old Frances McGrath, missing since Saturday from her Scituate summer home, was discovered today in the quiet, sylvan setting of a pine grove at the Scituate-Norwell line.

She had been left dead, or to die, by a monster who rained blows upon the defenseless child's face and head. Her clothes were torn. One little arm was drawn up over the face as though in hopeless defense. A few feet away were her hat and purse.

Near her head were her shoes.

What clothing her attacker did not rip away was disarranged, tattered and muddled.

First to look upon this tragedy of innocent childhood was Jack Lopes, 55, Stockbridge rd., Greenbush, a truck driver who stumbled upon it by accident.

He had walked into the woods from Winter st., a secondary road, when he saw the white little face upturned in a mossy vale under the pines.

A few feet away was an article of underclothing. The horrified Lopes took a step further and saw the child's shoes, purse and hat near her head.

SPEEDS WORD TO POLICE

He ran back to the road, jumped into his truck and got word to police.

Word spread like a flame through Scituate and the rest of the South Shore that the 6-day disappearance of Frances McGrath had ended with the finding of her body.

Chief Michael Stewart, who had been on his feet 72 hours, sent the sorry news to the child's father, John J. McGrath, former Boston city councilor.

Stewart had hardly reached the murder scene when, by foot and automobile, angry men and women converged on it from all directions.

State Police quickly set up barriers and posted guards to prevent the encroachment of automobile tire clues.

HEAD EXAMINED

Medical examiners, Dr. William E. Hines of Hingham, whose territory includes Scituate, and Dr. Norbert Lough, whose jurisdiction includes Norwell, were summoned.

Dr. Lough said the child apparently had been alive when taken to the lonely spot because they were signs of a struggle. There were scratches on the face and lips, bruises on the head.

The murderer—or murderers—had done their work in the face of a courageous fight by the little girl.

Ironically enough, death had come to the child not more than half a mile from the Norwell state police barracks.

Whoever seized the child Saturday night as she left the Scituate Harbor bowling alleys, apparently had driven there over Route 3A, to Maple st., to Winter, the latter a secondary road used as a short cut by persons familiar with the area, in driving between Scituate and Norwell.

BODY PHOTOGRAPHED

State Police hastened to make photographs of the body, the area and automobile tire marks. Distances were measured.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Robert Clark and aides from the Norfolk County office of Dist. Atty. Dewing arrived soon afterward.

peared to be making a separate investigation.

After the necessary work had been done the child's body was removed to Sparrell's funeral parlor in Norwell for an autopsy. Word of the sad find was taken to Frances' father, former City Councilor John J. McGrath, by Sgt. William Kane of the Scituate police.

The policeman could not find the will to tell McGrath in the company of his wife. Mary, 12, knocked on the cottage door and asked the father to step out on the piazza.

SENSES TRAGEDY

McGrath took the news as manfully as a father could. Then he entered the cottage, went to his wife in the living room and asked her to leave their five other children for a moment.

He took his harrowed wife into a bedroom and asked her to lie down.

She divined what was coming. If her little girl had been found safe, the policeman wouldn't have whispered on the piazza and John would have come bustling into the house shouting the news.

McGrath gently told her the truth. Mary McGrath's maternal anguish was more than her wearied body could bear. She raised her head once, then subsided into near-unconsciousness. Later she summoned strength and asked for her other children. They were brought to her. Then the family went into the living room and huddled together to await more information from the authorities.

The McGrath family made a sorrowing exit from their summer home at 11:15 a. m. As the parents and five children drove past the Scituate police station, John McGrath and his wife sat side by side in the rear seat.

His arm was thrown around her shoulder. She was pressing a handkerchief to her face.

A friend of the family was driving. The McGrath children, white of face and tearful, huddled together.

They arrived at their Richview st., Dorchester, home about noon and received the commiserations of neighbors. The Peggotty rd. cottage was locked and under a police guard.

Whether Frances McGrath's agonizing experience had begun and ended the Saturday night of her disappearance, or was prolonged through Monday morning, was one question confronting the police.

Chief Stewart revealed that after the body was found a woman living near the scene came forward to report she had heard "terrible screams" in the woods at 2 a. m., Monday.

They were unmistakably those of a girl or woman, she said, but they subsided within a few seconds. She had not done anything about it, she explained, because she feared to go out alone.

She placed the origin of the sounds about 400 yards from her home. This was about the actual distance between her house and the glen where the child was found.

MANY LETTERS TO PARENTS

The disappearance of Frances McGrath was one of the most mysterious tragedies in the annals of American crime. It brought letters and telephone calls to her prostrated mother from many parts of the East.

No child ever walked unknowingly to her death from a happier household. Her father and mother waved an admiring farewell as she left their cottage early Saturday night to make confession at St. Mary's of the Nativity Church, about half a mile away.

Frances could have hidden to church with her father but she wore a new outfit and she was so proud of it she wanted everyone to see it.

Off she went to cross the marsh-lined causeway toward Scituate Harbor. A feather bobbed jauntily on her little "bonnie" hat and she hugged her small brown cloth purse, which contained a precious nickel for ice cream after church.

MET TWO SISTERS

Nothing untoward occurred during her trip to church—unless, concealed along the way, there was a fiend who marked her for a victim.

After church the little girl walked another tenth of a mile to Pinkham's drug store in Scituate Harbor. She was going to buy an ice cream cone.

At the store she met two of her sisters, Nancy, 14, and Eleanor, 16. They, too, had come there from confession. Frances greeted them delightedly. Now, perhaps she could have a 10-cent cone. Nancy lent her the extra nickel.

Frances wandered to another part of the store. Her father was to see her as he bought evening papers. But he assumed she would go home with her two sisters.

And the sisters, tragically enough, assumed Frances intended to accompany her father home in his automobile.

To Frances, in her bright new chartreuse suit, new brown shoes and other new clothes, the idea of going home at once did not appeal. The child wanted others to see how epic and span she was. She had been at the summer cottage only a few hours and now was a

More Grief

Misfortune continued to dog Mr. and Mrs. John J. McGrath as they returned to their home in Richview st., Dorchester, today after discovery of the body of their 10-year-old daughter, Frances.

Their only son, John, 6, was stricken with measles. His father, still harassed by the burden of his daughter, took him to City Hospital.

Superfort Raid Eyewitness Story

CHUNGKING, June 16 (AP)—America's Superfortresses left glowing masses of wreckage in the coke ovens and open hearth furnaces of the great Yawata steel mills in the curtain raiser attack of these B-29's on Japan yesterday. Radio Correspondent Roy Porter reported today in a broadcast from here.

The giant bombers, flying from bases in western China, ran into heavy anti-aircraft fire and encountered Jap night fighters, but "nearly all the ships came back," said Porter, one of 11 war correspondents who witnessed the attack.

Porter, a former Associated Press correspondent, represented the combined American radio networks on the raid.

"Tons upon tons of bombs were dropped on the coke ovens and open hearth furnaces. Japanese anti-aircraft fire poured into the sky, and shell fragments dug deeply into the superbombers, but the engines kept turning and nearly all the ships came home."

"Eleven war correspondents went on the trip to see, at the invitation of the 20th Bomber Command, the show of shows. And when the planes had turned homeward, leaving behind the glowing masses of wreckage, Japan had had her answer to Dec. 7, 1941, at Pearl Harbor."

ALL-AMERICAN RAID

"The boys who flew the raid last night now know that there are defenses there, but they also know that they are not as formidable as they have been made out to be by the Japs."

"The B-29 raid, first on the Jap mainland from Chinese bases, started off with a bang and finished with a flourish. From first to finish, it was an American show with American planes, American bombs, American apparatus and American crews."

"The first plane, piloted by Lt. Col. Richard Kenny of Springfield, O., and which carried Lt. Col.

BRIG. GEN. KENNETH WOLFE
Commands Raiders of Japan

William Breck of Washington, D. C., as an official observer, flew in to the target in almost complete darkness, marred only by a few searchlights.

"The next ship was piloted by Lt. Col. William Fluchs of Los Angeles, and Lt. Col. James Cauzier of Colorado as the observer. By that time the searchlights were going on. The anti-aircraft fire had started."

"I was in the third ship, which its crew affectionately calls 'The First Ship' of its own group. It hasn't any nickname, but its engines are named for wives and girl friends of the crew. This airplane got its nickname of 'First' because it was the first B-29 to be flown by its own crew overseas from the United States."

"It was the first to fly the 'hump' between India and China. It was the first to be attacked by Jap fighter planes on that same 'hump' trip."

"We took off from a base in western China, carrying a large load of bombs and gasoline. We arrived at the target at exactly 11:09:41 that night. It was at that moment that our bombs plunged downward towards their Japanese marks."

ALARM ALREADY GIVEN

"The two minutes that preceded it, however, were—as we say in the air force—rugged. In the first place, the alarm had already been given by the first two planes. The searchlight batteries were full on. The enemy aircraft was blazing below. And even before we got near the target area, we had to weave and dodge our way in."

"It wasn't too bad at first, but it got steadily worse as we flew east toward the fine target of the imperial steel and iron works. Flak began to spray the ship. Weaving searchlights picked us up time and again, only to lose us almost immediately. And then it happened!"

"One field battery caught us in its huge, savage ack-ack. From that time on until we outran the beacons, the whole cabin was lit up like Madison Square Garden on hockey night. A white and a sputter on the nose told of a bullet hit; a dull thud on the right wing was a piece of shrapnel, as we found out later. We just turned and turned. . . . Those faithful engines kept right on going without one moment's hesitation."

"One of the strange things which we encountered over the target, as so many other planes did, was the absence of Jap night-fighters. We didn't see one, and our gunners were disappointed, to say the least."

"We thought once in the excitement that we saw something that looked like a fighter, but we never could place it."

WHILE ACK-ACK BOOMS

"And all this time—which were seconds, comparatively, but hours proportionately—the ack-ack was booming, and the searchlights were poking their long noses into the ship. Some of the other crews were not so lucky."

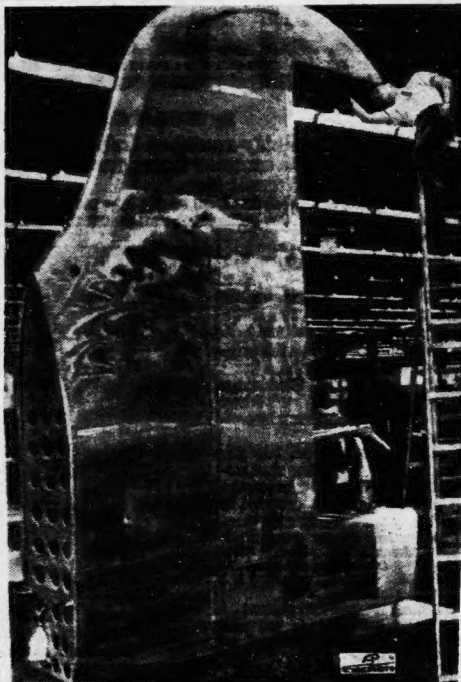

"As the long lines of B-29's began to string out, the Japs had more time to organize their defensive. Enemy pilots got their ships into the combat area, and the fight was on!"

"Just since I've come back to Chungking for this broadcast, one of my friends has asked me to describe an aerial fight between a B-29 and the Jap bomber. Well, the answer is there is no such thing—because it just can't happen. There are cases on record where a Jap pilot dove at a B-29 which he saw only a moment before him, and when he pulled up he didn't know it wasn't there. That's just a small recommendation of the speed with which these huge bombers can battle."

"It didn't always work that way last night, and some crews had a lot of fun sniping away from their various positions while the Japs sought to pierce the Dragonfly's tough hide like a mouse poking at an elephant."

"There were a couple of smart guys in my ship. For example, the one who came on the inter-phone just as we were entering the target area with 'hey, chief, let's get out of here. Somebody's liable to get hurt!'"

"And the boy who was asked in the midst of the excitement over the same inter-phone, 'Hey, Al, are you a cloud-hopper yet?'"

"And Al's reply: 'Well, not that I know of.'"

"All this was going on while the deadly business of bombing the Jap target was being prosecuted. The bombardier was at his sights, the navigator was working to let the course right and the two pilots were weaving and dodging. They did a magnificent job. And for some it was their first combat mission. But the 20th bomber command, because of the value in dollars of its ships and the value in tactics of its operations, specializes in good crews."

"We only stayed for about 10 minutes over that outer defense, but it seemed ten times that long. We entered in bomb-run as the Japs themselves lit up the target and the searchlights still played on the planes."

HAD TO KILL OR DIE

"There were no half-measures in that combat. We had to kill and destroy or be killed and destroyed. The bomb went down toward their great targets smashing into the heart of the Japanese steel industry. And then it was that one of the crew members gave me a kick and said, 'Gosh, isn't it pretty down there?'"

"Well, loaded down with a parachute and Mae West life-preserver and a flak suit and helmet to protect me from flying fragments, I was not especially interested in the scenery, but more on those sharp flashes being poured at us."

"When the bombs had dropped on the target, seconds that had seemed hours before became days in proportion of length. The ship just lay low, nose toward the target, and the searchlights held on."

There were some remarks made in the cabin of that plane that expressed exactly the idea of the moment. But that moment is past. Still the lights flamed, and yet we could not avoid them."

STEEL SHATTERS CABIN

"We climbed a bit, dropped a bit, and all this time, cold steel was splintering against the outside of the cabin. And then suddenly, as if nothing at all had happened, the pilot leaned back and said: 'We're very well out of that.'"

"And as he spoke the lights died away. The plane had picked up speed and we roared away into the darkness, toward the west, toward China and safety."

"For a few moments there was silence over the inter-com, and then almost without a signal at all there were 11 husky voices raised in that familiar song of the air corps."

"You may have heard it sung, as I have, by marching cadets, by young officers just commissioned, but never in such a situation could you hear it sung with the vitality and spirit of the rightful aggressor, with the joy of having been in the very shadow of those who don't come back, but did, somehow."

"It was not triumphant, it was not victorious; it was just a young American lad who was singing because he had fought a battle and won, because he had dared his life and come through."

JOY AMONG THE CREW

"A quick switch to the inter-phone. 'Hey, Joe . . . see that fire?'"

"Yeah, sure, I'll bet that's one you started."

"We were just about there, weren't we?"

"Now, you're seeing things; we was way over there."

"O. K., wise guy."

"Then the bantering stopped."

"After the long flight back to the base, there was the usual questioning of the crew-members—what they'd seen, what they'd done under certain circumstances, and what their reactions were to enemy opposition."

"Here again another divergence of opinion resulted, another difference in experience. Some had encountered only flak; other had come up against night-fighters. The two events were, to their minds, entirely different. But it still added up to the same thing—the you can't fight a one-sided war even with B-29 Dragonflies."

"There was little bad news from all these returning. Nothing like what might have been expected from such a mission. The final result was almost fantastic as the reports began to pour in from the bases."

"This plane came in perhaps with one rudder missing and that plane came in with a huge hole in one wing, but flying proudly, although somewhat disabled. And nearly all got back, their crews with them."

AVENGE FIRST RAIDERS

"There are no really spectacular stories that I heard. There were no great explosions, no prolific concentration of enemy power against our aerial invasion of Japan. And yet deep in the heart of every American crew there remained a remembrance of what happened to those Doolittle fliers, the men who first crossed the coast of Japan in their attack on Tokyo. These, the crews last night, were the avengers not only of Pearl Harbor, but of Jimmie Doolittle's men."

"So far I have not mentioned names of the crew of my ship, because I wanted to talk about them as a team first. However, their friends at home will be glad to know they all came home, perhaps they'll be glad to know they brought me with them."

"They included Maj. Charles Hamilton of Klamath Falls, Ore., Lt. Carrol Hangbauch of Millersburg, Pa., Capt. Stephen Silverman of Boston, Lt. Roy Pearson of Tampa, Fla., T-Sgt. Core of Chicago, Sgt. Lebano of Pittsburgh, Sgt. Virgil Belfort of Beaumont, Tex., Sgt. Edward Roar of Colorado, Sgt. James Bracken of Bridgeport, Ct., and Sgt. Harold Glenon of Ft. Worth."

"That did a good job. And we hope it is only the beginning of such a series of blows."

Japs Got No B-29's, 2 Lost in Accidents

WASHINGTON, June 16 (AP)—America's first task force of the mighty B-29 Super Fortresses lost no planes to enemy action in yesterday's raid that hit industrial targets at Yawata, Japan.

Two planes, however, were lost through accidents, the war department said in the second communique of yesterday's historic aerial strike against the Japanese mainland—made from Chinese bases.

Text of the 20th Air Force communique:

"A sizable task force of B-29's from the 20th bomber command bombed industrial targets at Yawata on the Kyushu island in the Japanese homeland on Thursday. Two B-29's were lost as a result of accidents. One crew of which is safe. This communique is based on the preliminary incomplete reports from the combat zone."

that although enemy aircraft were encountered and anti-aircraft was moderate to intense, none of the planes was lost as a result of enemy action.

"Eilers who participated in the mission report the bombing was accurate and that large fires and explosions were observed."

"The planes operated from bases in China which were completed recently. Two B-29's were lost as the result of accidents, one crew of which is safe. This communique is based on the preliminary incomplete reports from the combat zone."

Quiz Doctor on Wire In Noxon Baby's Death

By PAULINE WARREN

PITTSFIELD, June 16—Possibility that the electrocution of the Noxon baby might have been caused by some other means than a trouble light cord was injected into the murder trial of John F. Noxon, Jr., today by Dr. Alan Moritz, state pathologist.

At the time of his arrest, Noxon insisted to police that the electrocution of his abnormal son was accidental and was caused when the infant came in contact with an exposed part of the cord while he was resting on a metal tray. He told police then he had burned the cord.

Today Dist. Atty. Charles R. Alberti succeeded in getting into the record an opinion from Dr. Moritz that a different instrument of death may have been used—an instrument capable of causing identical burns or lesions such as found on the right forearm of the baby.

Seizing Commonwealth exhibit 28—the ground wire of the Noxon radio—Alberti asked Dr. Moritz: "I show you this so-called ground wire (exhibit 28), having two bare copper wires at the end, and ask you if those bare wires used as an electrode would be adequate cause or consistent with the lesions on the Noxon child's right forearm?"

There was violent objection from ex-Gov. Joseph B. Ely and Walter Donovan, defense counsel, and considerable delay before Judge Pinanski ruled that Dr. Moritz could state his opinion.

VIOLENT OBJECTION

His answer was: "Under the circumstances, I believe these copper wires in exhibit 28, the ground wire, could produce burns of the shape and size observed on the Noxon child—right forearm."

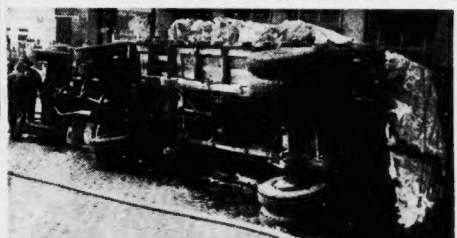

In answer to another question Moritz stated: "If these wires came in contact with the skin I would expect them to produce lesions similar to these three (pointing to a blackboard on which he had already drawn a diagram of the burns found on the baby during the autopsy) here which resemble exclamation marks, and similar to this linear lesion."

"The two top marks resembling T's are simple puncture wounds and show no effect of heat or electricity," further stated Dr. Moritz, while the jurors edged forward in their seats.

Earlier Dr. Moritz had described in minute detail the gruesome wounds as he had observed them both with the naked eye and under the microscope. He stated they were of a shape consistent with their having been in contact with wire or wires.

"The wounds on the right arm," he said, "looked as if they had been in contact with the end of a slender electrode which penetrated the epidermis in an upper direction."

He also stated the cause of SOUTH BOSTON TURNOVER—A 6500-pound load of baled cotton shifted as this trailer truck started to turn from Broadway onto Dorchester ave., South Boston, today, and the whole truck went over on its side. The operator, Daniel W. Martin, of Essex st., Saugus, was uninjured.

death as entered on the official record was:

"Death due to acute heart failure induced by passage of electricity through the chest from forearm to forearm."

The autopsy showed several abnormalities in the lungs—the air sacs were distended and the finest blood vessels were engorged, showing that prior to the child's death there had been a short period of circulatory failure, according to Dr. Moritz's testimony.

The defense experts, Dr. Charles C. Lund, burns specialist, and Dr. Milton Halpern, associate medical examiner, who will be called to the stand to refute some of this damaging testimony, perched on a window sill the better to view the huge blackboard which Dr. Moritz was using. Mrs. Noxon was spared the description of her baby's wounds as she did not appear in court this morning. Her husband listened from the prisoner's dock with his chin sunk on his chest most of the time, never once losing the austere composure he has shown ever since the trial started.

French Couple Bury 16 Yanks

By FRANKLIN BANKER

A FIGHTER BASE IN ENGLAND, June 16 (AP)—An elderly, devout French couple buried 16 American air-borne soldiers set up white crosses and adorned the graves with flowers tied with pink silk ribbons, returning pilots reported today.

The soldiers were killed in D-Day landings when their gliders crashed into anti-glider poles erected by the Nazis in fields near the French couple's farmhouse. Laboriously the aging pair dug neat rows of graves; sadly they laid the soldier dead to rest, and tenderly they covered the mounds with soil.

On each white cross they wrote the date—June 6, 1944—the name and the rank of the dead. Then they hung the soldiers' identification tags on the crosses.

The incident was related by Thunderbolt pilots returning from landing strips in Normandy.

Bombing of Japan Speeds Bond Sales

The bombing of Japan today brought a surge in the sale of Fifth War Loan bonds, it was announced here by the War Finance Committee.

Official reports showed that Massachusetts had met 11 per cent of its quota for Series E bonds, but officials pointed out that sales were greatly in excess of that figure since reports were lagging far behind sales.

Meanwhile, 10,000 members of the Boys' Clubs of Boston were engaged in a canvass of South Boston, Roxbury and Charlestown under the slogan "Buy More Than Before."

Veterans of World War 11 in the Brighton district will do their part Monday night by sponsoring a sales rally in Brighton High School auditorium.

Tonight, the all service show, "Direct Hit," will appear at Hol-yoke and then continue on to Meriden, Ct.

In pointing out that sales figures at this stage of the campaign necessarily are behind schedule, F. W. Denio, chairman of the Massachusetts committee, said:

"Massachusetts investors bought $30,000,000 worth of E, F, and G bonds in May without benefit of drive stimulation," said Denio. "In June, so far, with half the month gone, sales of $11,800,000 of E bonds in the State have been reported. But reports are slow to reach headquarters. It was not until the middle of June that a complete report of May sales was received. Any figure, therefore, released this early in the Fifth War Loan, means nothing."

"To make its quota for the drive, Massachusetts must double the May figure in June and again in July. That is, the people must buy $60,000,000 worth of bonds each month."

Thrills Pack Big INVASION SHOW

Boston's Fourth of July INVASION BOND SHOW in the Charles River Basin, sponsored by Boston retail merchants, will be a three-hour, thrill packed, realistic war maneuver, in which skilled squads from all branches of the armed forces will take part.

Simulating actual fighting conditions, the river spectacle will show how America's fighting men combat enemy implements of modern war and overcome geographical obstacles. Navy and Coast guard units will demonstrate how personnel and equipment are rescued, while Army and Air Force groups present new methods of attack.

Only purchasers of E, F and G war bonds will be entitled to tickets to witness the spectacle, said by federal officials to be the greatest bond sale attraction ever attempted in this country.

The INVASION BOND SHOW will be educational as well as a builder of patriotism and morale. No expense has been spared by the Boston retail merchants and the various branches of the armed services in preparing the program. School boys and girls had better fill up their stamp books and get the bonds necessary for admission, because nobody should miss such an exhibition.

The committee in charge of arrangements feels that selection of Boston as a site of such a stupendous water pageant, and Independence Day as the date, couldn't have been more appropriate.

Daily reports being submitted to Secretary R. A. Johnston of the Boston Retail Trade Board, relative to the sales of bonds by the various department and specialty stores since the opening of the retail merchants' drive on Tuesday, have been most gratifying. It was announced yesterday.

Raid Cuts Jap Steel Output

By CLYDE A. FARNSWORTH
U. S. SUPERFORTRESS BASE IN WESTERN CHINA, June 16 (AP)—American B-29s, the new superfortress, in their first terrific body blow at Japan's war industry may have knocked out a fifth of the empire's steel production in yesterday's raid on Yawata, the Pittsburgh of Japan.

The world's most powerful warplanes made the longest bombing flight in history and left trains of demolition bombs bursting in the imperial iron and steel works at Yawata in northern Kyushu.

"This is but the beginning of our organized destruction of the Japanese industrial empire," commented Brig. Gen. Kenneth E. Wolfe, who was chiefly responsible for the production of the B-29. The imperial works, largest in the Japanese empire, is credited with 20 per cent of Japanese steel production.

Mannerheim Line Smashed

MOSCOW, June 16 (AP)—The Red Army has smashed its way through Finland's "new Mannerheim line," one of the last barriers on the way to the important seaport of Viipuri, it was reported today.

A Red Star dispatch said the new Mannerheim line was a tremendous fortification, with four lines of walls made of cone-shaped stone and anti-tank blocks almost two yards high, before which lay an anti-tank mine field 20 yards wide and strewn with German mines.

A great gap has been cut in this line, and in some places Soviet tanks and artillery, as well as infantry, are considerably beyond it, the dispatch said.

The main breakthrough was in the region of Kuuterselkka, with the new Mannerheim Line running from the southwest to the northeast, deep in swamps and forests.

A quarter mile away from the trenches the Finns had three additional ranks of tank blocks built around steel shelters.

Red Star said the Soviets smashed the line at the Gulf of Finland coast and also captured an important highway crossing.

Allies Step up Air Blasts on Continent

By GLADWIN HILL

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, June 16 (AP)—The Allied aerial offensive against continental targets swept on today after RAF heavy bombers made their second big, high-altitude predusk precision attack yesterday, plastering 12,000-pound bombs on Nazi E-boat, R-boat and minesweeper pens at Boulogne.

As the aerial assault in support of the Normandy invasion rolled on this morning, the German radio reported hostile aircraft approaching the Austrian provinces of Carinthia and Styria.

Big British four-engine Lancasters, with their fighter escort, hit the French channel port of Boulogne first at 10:30 p. m. yesterday—just before dusk. The attack was similar to one the RAF made Wednesday night at Le Havre—a strike which reconnaissance indicated was very successful.

Other British heavy bombers, continuing the attack into the night, hit railway centers at Valenciennes and Lens and a fuel dump at Chateaufort.

Fourteen bombers were missing from all these operations, while Allied night intruder planes destroyed four enemy aircraft and damaged others over France.

The evening and night operations also saw a Mosquito force hit targets in western Germany.

Supreme headquarters announced 3000 sorties were made by Allied planes yesterday in direct support of the ground operations in Normandy.

During yesterday afternoon medium bombers hit targets from Valognes in the Cherbourg peninsula to Laval, about 75 miles behind the enemy lines.

RAF heavy bombers also sought out the ammunition dump in the Rennes forest, officially described as the enemy's most important in western France.

RAF rocket fighters, fighter-bombers and fighters pounded nine northern France railroad centers. Then these planes shot up troops and tanks hidden in an orchard, observation posts and a radio station, mainly around the Caen area.

Lupien to Return To Pacific Mills

Ulysses J. Lupien, former state director of Civil Service, announced today at an interview with newspapermen that he would return to work with the Pacific Mills of Lawrence on a part-time basis, a job that he held prior to his appointment as Civil Service Director in September, 1939.

Lupien's position as State Director terminated today following the submitting of his resignation announced several months ago.

"My work in the future will be as a labor relations consultant for industry," he said. "Attention will have to be given to the re-employment of servicemen. One plant has 1500 in the service and a roster of 6000 employees."

Hubby's Punches Win Her Decree

Whenever she refused to give her husband money to play cards, he would knock her down, Mrs. Elise R. von Nostitz testified today as she sought a divorce in Suffolk court.

Judge Dillon granted her a decree on grounds of cruel and abusive treatment and ordered the husband, Paul T. von Nostitz, to pay her $20 weekly for the support of their two children.

A similar decree was granted Mrs. Helen J. Manning of Westwood st., Dorchester, from Leo S. Manning, freeman.

Mrs. Mildred C. Michael, Commonwealth ave., Back Bay, declared her husband, George, beat her because she refused to join him in a "jam" session. Judge Dillon granted her a divorce for cruel and abusive treatment.

Chaplain, Heroine Meet Again on Ship

By HUCK FINNEGAN

SOMEWHERE AT SEA—Rev. Victor J. Bossogne, S. J., a junior chaplain aboard ship, met Red Cross worker Rose Dolan on deck this morning, and behind their meeting lies an interesting story.

Fr. Bossogne was in high spirits as he unfolded the tale at lunch.

He was a Belgian until he received his naturalization papers earlier this year, and thus was enabled to serve in the U. S. Army. He was 14 when the Germans first overran his native land. He can recall it vividly because they destroyed the famous library at Louvain where he loved to pore through the books in his spare moments.

The Americans rebuilt the library after the war, and the young Bossogne was happy again. He studied hard, and was ordained in Louvain in '31. When the Second World War broke out, the Germans again overran Belgium and again destroyed the library at Louvain. Fr. Bossogne was serviced to the medical corps, like all Belgian chaplains, and was forced to flee to southern France in May of 1940, when Leopold surrendered.

MEETS MISS DOLAN

Near Sedan, on the Meuse, as 1,500,000 Belgian refugees were being strafed by German planes, he met Miss Dolan. She had worked for Anne Morgan in the last war, had returned to France to establish residence.

"A great lady," said Fr. Bossogne. "She drove out in a station wagon, risking death to help the evacuees. She helped inestimably, too. She was calm, while all around her were frantic women with babes in arms, the old and infirm."

Fr. Bossogne didn't even learn her name at the time. He continued on to unoccupied France, remained there while the armistice was being signed, and returned to Belgium in August.

A concentration camp was to be his lot, and he didn't like the idea. "I'd rather die on the battlefield," he said. So he decided to escape.

PEDALLED 500 MILES

He threaded his way on bicycle 500 miles, only his knowledge of German enabling him to make good his bluff. He had many narrow escapes from death en route, but the last German guard band him "Good Luck." He needed it. He couldn't sail from France, so he stole into Spain, where he boarded a steamer for the U. S. Submarines were rampant in the Atlantic at the time, and his trip to the States took him 26 days. Upon arrival he looked up friends with whom he had studied at Louvain, and wound up teaching the history of law at Loyola in New Orleans.

Meantime he had taken out citizenship papers so that he might serve in the U. S. Army. He kept teaching through 541-'43, then last winter came up to the Army's Chaplains' School at Harvard from Dec. 14 to Feb. 11. He received his final citizenship papers on March 5, was commissioned a 1st lieutenant on March 20.

"It is four years since I met Miss Dolan in Sedan," he said, "and to think I should meet her on this boat. It is a happy omen."

PROVIDENCE LAD

He took his basic at Devens, later was Fr. Bossogne's altar boy at Camp Reynolds, Pa. So elated was Fr. Bossogne to see him that he has made him his assistant aboard ship. Eddie leads the singing at the three-a-day services, and serves mass when needed.

"I'd like to go to Boston College and become a priest after the war," he said. He has a brother John, 26, serving as a warrant officer at Camp Campbell, Ky. Ronald Trudeau, 144 Cranston st., Providence, R. I., is the other altar boy aboard ship. He graduated in '38 from Central High, which gave Al Morro, John and Ed Zabiski to Boston College.

He used to pal around with Phil Carson, husband of Red Cross Worker Georgia Carson, and presented her with a ring which he made from toothbrushes. It had a picture of Phil in place of a stone.

Ronald is a wiry individual, who has reduced from 183 to 166. He'd have been overseas long ago had he not broken a leg in the Tennessee maneuvers last October.

He was a cloth inspector at the Cranston Print Works in his pre-Army days.

"Best marathons in the world ought to come out of the (censored) forces," says Ronald. "One of our tests is to double time nine miles in one hour, 20 minutes. That takes endurance and courage."

"Paratrooping is fun. Fellow's on his own. But I think I'd like espionage work better. I speak French fluently. Do you think that might help me?"

Doctors Cite Grove Fire To Prove Boric Acid Danger

CHICAGO, June 16 (AP)—New medical advances, reported today at the American Medical Ass'n convention:

Bleeding in four types of wounds is stopped in a few seconds by Red Cross plasma plus thrombin, a substance extracted from plasma. It does this in small wounds, in surgery where no scars are desired, in surgical removal of breasts and in skin grafts. The report was by Drs. Forrest Young and Benedict V. Favata, Rochester, Minn.

Boric acid applied to extensive burns gets into the brain, liver and body fat and may cause death by shock that results from these infiltrations. This report was made by the Naval Medical Research Institute, Bethesda, Md.

In the Cocoanut Grove fire in Boston, the report said, this acid was used in an ointment, and the National Research Council's subcommittee on burns first sent out a recommendation for the ointment, and later withdrew it.

Penicillin was reported by several physicians as good and occasionally spectacular in eye infections; as the most effective medicine available in the kind of nose and throat infections which endanger life; and as a probable life saver from peritonitis, or infection in the abdominal cavity.

AMA Group Attack Stirs Sister Kenny

Special to the Boston American

CHICAGO, June 16—Her eyes flashing in anger, Sister Kenny replied to charges by a committee of the American Medical Ass'n that her treatment of infantile paralysis is unscientific and ineffective.

The report, prepared by a committee of seven orthopedic physicians, including Dr. Edward L. Compere of Chicago, named two years ago to investigate the treatment, accused Sister Kenny of "deliberate misrepresentation" and added:

"There is no evidence that the Kenny treatment prevents or decreases the amount of paralysis."

Shown a copy of the report, Sister Kenny said:

"It is very evident that these people know nothing of what they are talking about. It is most criminal that this thing has happened."

Sister Kenny cited one instance in which one of the doctors who signed the report, Dr. J. Albert Key of the Washington University Medical School, examined a paralysis patient in the presence of 10 other doctors and pronounced him completely paralyzed. She said:

"I disagreed with his diagnosis, and in 10 seconds I had the muscles restored to their complete functioning."

A tall woman in a plain black dress which set off her gray hair, Sister Kenny talked about her experiences in America, and her four-year fight with the American medical profession, she said:

"When I first came to America in 1940, I was told by Basil Connor, head of the Infantile Paralysis Foundation, to return to Australia."

"But I learned soon that the American people wanted me to stay here, and a number of doctors with whom I worked became convinced that I was right."

Thin Out Crops Now in V-Garden

By FOSTER H. WEISS

With an end of the long drouth, crops have taken a growing spurt—and so have the weeds.

Crops should be thinned without delay and it is most important that the weeds be kept down. A few days of carelessness now will count heavily against the victory gardener at harvest time.

Recently I visited a group of community gardens that were planted under the same conditions and the variation is noticeable. Some of the best gardens are by the beginners who have followed a plan. Refer to your plan and notes so as to keep the garden on schedule.

Head lettuce and peas from our Victory garden on the Common are in excellent condition and ready to use. This shows the importance of getting these two crops in early.

Another factor that stands out is that it pays to use plants for your early lettuce. This method not only gives us an early yield but makes the land available for succession cropping.

One job that confuses new growers is thinning. They do not have the heart to pull up the plants so as to allow for proper spacing. Crops such as beets, carrots, seed lettuce, turnips and even the vine crops must be spaced properly to grow and develop into good specimens. It takes courage to pull extra plants out, but it must be done. Thin beets, carrots and early turnips to about 2-3 inches in the row, depending on variety. Head lettuce from seed should be spaced 8-9 inches, and loose leaf lettuce about 4 inches.

Summer squash, an excellent yellow vegetable, is now getting started and must have some special care while young. It is liable to be attacked by the striped cucumber beetle which can destroy the whole crop.

Dust plants with copper lime, arsenate dust or rotenone as soon as the true leaves appear. The squash plant grows large and needs considerable space to develop. If planted in hills 4 feet each way, leave about 3 good plants to the hill. This may look like a waste of space now, but they will soon cover the ground.

McGrath Thanks American For Assistance in Tragedy

Soon after former City Councillor John J. McGrath brought his sorrowing family to their Dorchester home from the Scituate tragedy scene today, he telephoned the Record-American:

"I could not let another minute pass without expressing my thanks and those of my family for the efforts of your newspaper and its men to aid us during our ordeal.

"We particularly want you to know we appreciated the offer of your newspapers' facilities. We are grateful to Jim McEnaney and Frank McLean, your reporters, and cameraman Lester MacLellan who co-operated with our requests.

"Nor can we ever forget the sympathy and aid of the people as a whole. We thank them for their prayers, the medals they sent us and their offers of assistance.

"All helped to give us the fortitude to bear our burden.

"Our relatives are now with us at home, giving comfort to Mrs. McGrath and our children. I would like all the kind men and women who hoped and prayed for us—friends and strangers—to know we are doing the best we can, under the circumstances."

Permits were granted in May for construction totalling $1,378,214, a drop of 17.5 per cent from the amount expended by the same communities in April.

Frederick E. Wallace, New England School of Art instructor, won first prize in the portraits, figures and still life class for his portrait of "Lettitia."

John Whorf, of New York and Provincetown, won the competition in water colors for his "Park Street Church." Both Wallace and Whorf received Richard Mitton class awards and $100 cash prizes. The awards were presented by George W. Mitton, chairman of the board of Jordan Marsh Co.

MERION, Pa. (AP)—A patrolman rapped at the door of Mrs. John Steele's apartment at 4:30 in the morning.

But she looked in his crib and her son, Michael, was gone. "He's down at the station," said the policeman. "we found him wandering around in the rain in his undershirt and diaper."

STARTS FOR HOME

It was nearly 9 p. m. Where to go? She knew she would find some of her former chums at the Scituate recreation center.

There she went, carrying her purse in one hand, her ice cream cone in the other.

She sought out the bowling alleys where a number of children were playing. Frances moved among them for a few minutes, exchanging greetings and even asking several women at one alley if she could set up pins for them.

Then, apparently, the growing lateness of the hour caused her to set out for home.

WAVED "GOOD-NIGHT"

As she started for the door, she waved to John Gagnon, manager of the alleys. She gave him a demure, "Good-night, Mr. Gagnon," and went out into the night.

Gagnon was to remember her good-by later. He had happened to look at the clock a minute before and noted it was about 9:15.

No one ever saw Frances McGrath again but the abductor and murderer.

When she stepped into the street the skies were black with an approaching thunder storm.

She would have had to walk more than half a mile over a lonely marsh stretch, the causeway, to reach her Peggotty rd. cottage.

Veterans Need Jobs, Too

WITH ITS ENACTMENT of the G. I. Bill of Rights, Congress has taken timely and appropriate action to demobilize the men in the armed services without infliction of needless hardships upon them and their families.

The action was not taken any too soon, for demobilization—especially of the disabled—is going on now and must go on while the war is being won. The G. I. Bill of Rights is intended to take care of this rapidly developing situation.

Yet, in reality, Congress has accomplished only half of its task.

THE RETURNING VETERANS MUST BE DEMOBILIZED BACK INTO CIVILIAN LIFE AND EMPLOYMENT, NOT INTO DEPENDENT IDLENESS.

Consequently, the vast problem also lies ahead of DEMOBILIZING THE WAR INDUSTRIES and RE-ESTABLISHING PRODUCTION FOR CIVILIAN NEEDS, and this too is a requirement that is already upon the country.

Furthermore, it is a task that concerns not only veterans, but also millions of war workers, both men and women.

The nation has produced ships and tanks and airplanes, and all the other materials of combat, in such prodigious quantities that the whole business of war production is changing in aspect.

From now on, the major requirements in the European theaters of war are in replacement rather than in original armaments and equipment.

BECAUSE OF THIS, surpluses are already appearing; and the Army, Navy and Merchant Marine are being confronted daily with the necessity of "termination of war contracts"—which must NOT be carried out in such a way as to BANKRUPT THE FACTORIES AND SHUT THEIR DOORS.

Of course, an enormous part of the "surplus" ought to go for a time, and as rapidly as possible, to winning the neglected war in the Pacific.

But delivering what Generals MacArthur and Stilwell and Admiral Nimitz should have would not take long with our enormous war industries high-gearred as they now are, and would actually not utilize a considerable part of these industries at all.

So a comprehensive and orderly program of INDUSTRIAL DEMOBILIZATION is most urgently needed—and is needed NOW—to operate simultaneously with MILITARY DEMOBILIZATION for the purpose of providing permanent peacetime jobs as such jobs are required.

Congress is splendidly equipped to enact the necessary legislation.

It has the studied recommendations of the Baruch-Harcourt report and the George Murray Bill.

And it now has the tremendously important proposals just made by the Senate's Special Postwar Economic Policy and Planning Committee.

Furthermore, in an appearance before a sub-committee of the Senate Military Affairs Committee, Former Justice James F. Byrnes, Director of War Mobilization, has approved the proposals of the George-Murray Bill and made substantially the same recommendations as the Postwar Economic Committee.

THE SENATE COMMITTEE set forth 16 "legislative obligations" which it asks Congress to meet "WITHOUT DELAY" in order to guide the return and readjustment to a peacetime economy and prevent the maladjustments and miseries, perhaps the social and economic disorders, of widespread postwar demoralization.

The Committee program calls for the establishment of Congress of an "Office of Demobilization," with accompanying legislation to terminate war contracts fairly, to clear war "inventories" out of the plants, to assure unemployment insurance and public projects for temporarily displaced war workers as well as veterans, to "migrate" and re-train "surplus" labor, to revise Federal highway and thereby stimulate investment and private enterprise, and to remove wartime Governmental restrictions which would operate as impediments to employment.

When the Senate Committee report was submitted, both Houses of Congress were talking about a long summer adjournment.

The Committee cautioned that NO SUCH CONGRESSIONAL RECESS "SHOULD EVEN BE CONSIDERED" until an economic demobilization program has been adopted by law.

The Committee solemnly warned that, if Congress fulfills its "legislative obligations"—

... We can well have what Mr. Baruch called an ADVENTURE IN PROSPERITY, but if it is not carried by these fields and ranch who decisions in the WE CAN LIVE ECONOMIC CHAOS."

WASHINGTON, June 16—A plan to solve all America's domestic problems—and probably most international problems as well—is being given consideration by the Rockbottom Hale Upheaval Corporation, of which Rep. Robert Hale, of Maine, is president and board of directors.

The project is "scintulously simple. It merely calls for removal of the tops of the Rocky and Allegheny mountains.

The Rockbottom Hale Upheaval Corporation naturally takes its name from Rep. Hale, who had the title "Rockbottom" conferred upon him by his Congressional colleagues. He assured me, however, that he did not insist on the corporation bearing his cognomen.

With becoming modesty, he said that all credit should go to a lady Congressman. I consulted the lady Congressman in question. She admitted having been the inspiration, but said she did not wish to go around grabbing credit and would just as soon her name was withheld.

THE CORPORATION, which believes in keeping to the forefront, came into existence as the result of a letter received by Rep. Hale from Henry T. Donohue of Chicago.

Donohue said he believed civilization could be saved if Rep. Hale would push his plan through Congress. After a long preamble filled with suspense, the author disclosed that all that had to be done was decapitate the mountains aforementioned.

Donohue said the Rockies and Alleghenies are causing air pressure which brings too much rain to certain portions and drought to others. They are also using up valuable space.

If the mountain tops were removed, he continued, millions of square miles of productive land would become available in America and the foreign refugee problem would be solved. He added that it would also bring America closer together, as there would no longer be such distinctive regions as the Atlantic and Pacific seaboard.

Furthermore, people would not go around sticking up their noses merely because they live East or West of the Rockies.

Well, Rep. Hale considered this remarkable proposition with other Congressmen and the idea caught on like wildfire. Practically every time a bunch of Congressmen get together now they toss in added suggestions for the Rockbottom Hale Upheaval Corporation.

Rep. Hale, who is one of the best deadpan kidders on Capitol Hill, took the matter up with Rep. Hal Holmes, of Washington state. Hale said he was prepared to sacrifice every mountain top in Maine if Holmes would only agree to knock off the Rockies.

HOLMES DEMURRED: he said the people of Washington have become attached to the Rockies.

"You are a reactionary, that's what you are," Hale accused Holmes. "I suppose you are going to tell me that the Rockies were good enough for your grandfather and they are good enough for you?"

"It's not that so much," said Holmes. "I have just sort of gotten used to them."

"That is not being liberal or forward-looking," said Hale. "Your attitude is one that all progressive people should deplore. Be broad, now, and give up the Rockies."

Holmes said he would have to consult the voters back home, because, after all, a matter of surrendering a batch of tried and true old mountains properly should be submitted to the electorate.

Listen to Miss in the morning
When the sky is black and gray;
While the guns roll distant war-

We kneel and pray,
Kneel by a battered table
As the mist walk down the hill,
For Christ is again in a stable
And the world is standing still.
—LT. DARYL MCCOY.

A GOOD POEM is always worth reading twice. I quoted the above before. At that time I stated it had been enclosed in a letter from Lieut. D'Arcy McCoy but he didn't say who wrote it. I now learn, from other sources, that the lieutenant wrote it himself. Therefore, I feel this modest fighting man should be given full credit. . . . A 26-year-old cat that still bears kittens. That's what a resident of Wilkeson, Wash., has. This cat prefers a diet of raw vegetables. Its owner believes this diet has much to do with the longevity of this remarkable feline. . . . When a husband and wife are both in the Army and the wife outranks the husband, I wonder how that affects the domestic situation. Maybe I can get some details on this. Have just received a letter from a member of the fighting forces in the Southwest Pacific, who says:

"My wife is a lieutenant in the WACS and I am not even a private first class yet."

SIDELIGHTS: "So a Hollywood bachelor changed a diaper in 17 seconds and thinks that is good." . . . When a Seattle subscriber. "When he marries and has a little more experience he may do better. I am a married man. My record for diaper

Other Congressmen, who owe no particular allegiance to mountains, were lavish with suggestions.

The lady Congressman I told you about said the tops of the Rockies should be carted across continent and dumped off the coast of Florida.

"This would divert the Gulf Stream," she said. "England would become too cold for habitation. The result is that the English would have to migrate to Canada—or maybe Maine. This would help settle many of the 'European problems'."

"That seems very logical," agreed Rep. Hale. "And, if time bombs were put under the Rockies, all the Democratic mountain states would move East and the inhabitants would vote Republican like mad. It seems an overall solution."

"Yes," said the lady, "and diversion of the Gulf Stream would make Florida and the Democratic southern states pretty chilly. As a result they would become industrialized and consequently Republican."

This untimely debate was at its height when Speaker of the House Sam Rayburn said:

"Hush," said Sam. "It sounds as if everybody was blowing his tops."

I AM in receipt of the following from Casswell Adams, noted sports authority:

"For you who have been around a long time, to give credit to Gen. 'Happy' Chandler for that hoary race track gag about 'I hope I break even, I need the money,' is ridiculous, scule and disgraceful. . . . That wonderful remark was made years ago by Eddie Mead, when he was manager of Henry Armstrong. Mead is dead, but I sincerely hope that you can find space to give credit where credit is due."

My apologies, Mr. Adams. I think it's silly to mind your own business, don't you?

By E. V. Darling

changing is nine and one-half seconds. . . . Am asked which is the more intelligent among dogs, the male or female. The inquirer adds: "I know you will have to admit it is the female." I won't admit anything of the kind. Don't forget that Lassie, the most intelligent dog in the films, is a male. The original Strongheart was also a male. Now you name a couple of outstanding female canines and we shall resume the argument at a later date.

QUERIES FROM CLIENTS:

Q—Don't look it up now, but in what show was the song, "Look for the Silver Lining," introduced, and who sang it? A—Mister, I think you have me. However, I believe Marilyn Miller sang this ditty in "Sonny." If not in "Sonny," she sang it in "Sally." And if Marilyn didn't sing it, in "Sonny" or "Sally," then Dale Winter sang it in "René." Q—To settle an argument, didn't we see you at Aqueduct the day of the Carter Handicap? A—No, sir. Haven't been at a race track in months. But don't get me wrong. I'm feeling fine. Haven't lost my enthusiasm for the sport. Will start going again after the war in Europe is finished. Look for me at the Futurity at Belmont in the fall. . . . Q—What became of Nick the Greek? A—Last I heard of him he was in Las Vegas, Nev., and still making an occasional killing at faro. Nick is quite a character and very often says proudly: "I may gamble a little, but I neither smoke, drink nor use profane language."

PLEASE NOTE: Except from letter from one of our fighting men in New Guinea: "Everything you have heard about the Japs is true. They are the most emaciated animals I ever saw. Those down here are sickly and half-starved. I think that 'Banzai' stuff is out of them now. A few more jumps like some we have been making and Tokyo will be just around the corner."

"What! Only one fish?"

Hollywood Today

By Louella O. Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, June 16—Over in London today, at long last, Vivien Leigh faces a movie camera at Denham Studios when she starts work on "Cleopatra and Caesar."

More actresses have longed to play G. B. Shaw's famous version of the Siren of the Nile than almost any other play. So this movie is important for several reasons. One is that it is to cost $500,000 (over $2,000,000 in American dollars); the other that it fulfills England's promise to make more important motion pictures.

Arthur Rank, England's foremost movie magnate, has financed Gabriel Pascal in this venture, and, of course, David Selznick has a big interest, since he loaned Miss Leigh to Pascal. Claude Rains went to England some weeks ago for the Caesar role. This, incidentally, is Vivien's first picture since "Lady Hamilton," which was probably the most popular American motion picture ever shown in Great Britain.

IF FRANK BORZAGE signs the contract with Republic that is now being discussed it will be the biggest money deal for a director ever put on paper. Frank is asking for $100,000 a picture, three pictures a year and 30 per cent of the profits. He is to select his own stories and be given carte blanche in making them. Should the deal be consummated it will be as much of an innovation for directors as was Constance Bennett's famous $300,000 contract with Warners years ago. Apparently when Herb Yates, Republic boss, wants a thing bad enough, money is no object.

THE IDEA of tall, luscious, pink-haired Lucille Ball as a femme menace didn't seem quite on the beam when I first heard she's to have the siren role in "Seattle." This is the movie that has been touted as Clark Gable's return to the screen after setting his fine Army record—but, then, so have a half-dozen other stories been whispered for Clark. Ralph Wheelwright made the adaptation of "Seattle" for John Considine and it's to be one of Metro's top budget films.

A FEW YEARS AGO, when Errol Flynn decided he wanted to be a producer, he made a few shorts with Howard Hill, called the world's greatest archer. Well, other things have occupied Errol's mind and we didn't hear again about Howard Hill until today, when we were told that he is to be the star in "A Son of Robin Hood" and have a chance to exhibit his skill as an archer. The movie is to be made by the Coronet Picture Co., an independent company which has been negotiating for Charlie Chaplin's studios. Their plan is to make a series of "Robin Hood" pictures. Remember Douglas Fairbank's popular "Robin Hood?"

MY COMPLIMENTS to George Frazier, magazine writer, for his interview on Humphrey Bogart. It was one of the most revealing and authentic stories ever written about Bogie and his tempestuous Mayo Methot. Frazier tells all, but in a friendly, admiring way, even to the famous Bogart battles. Which brings me to what I heard on the Warner lot. That is, that it's Drawn by Henry Bollinoff—Copyright, 1944, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

"Her husband's the umpire. It's the only chance she gets to yell at him!"

believed that Bogie will relent and make "God Is My Co-pilot," even though he said "no." It isn't because he didn't like the story, but because he feels that he and Mayo have a holiday on their boat coming to them. He is tired, too, after his overseas trip.

HOLD THE PRESSES! At last comes along a famous author who admits his novel was tough sledding for the movies and even sends a telegram praising the adaptation. Somerset Maugham is the illustrious gent who almost knocked the Universal executives cold when he wired them after seeing "Christmas Holiday" with Deanna Durbin and Gene Kelly: "A most ingenious job on a novel obviously difficult to adapt to the screen—and very well acted by Mrs. Durbin. My congratulations."

CHATTER IN HOLLYWOOD: Jerome Cowan isn't the happiest guy in the world—and because he has to age 30 years and become a bald-headed old man in "Mr. Skeffington." Not that Cowan minded making this concession to his art and donning a "bald pate" to cover his good head of hair, but the other day he received the following letter from a fan who had seen the picture in New York: "I always suspected that most of you actors were bald-headed. But when I saw the world did you get that marvelous hair piece you have been wearing all these years? I need one myself."

Boston American, June 16—23

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD COLLECTED AT RANDOM: Mickey Rooney is trying to persuade Ava Gardner to remarry him now he has donned a uniform; Pat Dane, who planned to attend the Palladium opening, says she is ready to resume her contract at M-G-M if they have anything ready for her; Bruce Cabot will be Errol Flynn's house guest when he reaches here this week; Dean Harens (and he is excellent in "Christmas Holiday") is playing host to his mother, who is here from Salt Lake City; Spencer Tracy is back from his trip East. He visited a submarine plant and says it was a marvelous experience. In Chicago he went into the Passavant Hospital for a routine check-up and is still on a diet. He looks wonderful. Henry Ginsberg took Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau to Hollywood Canteen after the Hollywood Bowl show where he and Bette Davis presented a lucky Navy lad with a $100 war bond.

THE GREGORY PECK's baby is expected Aug. 16; the Lewis Milestones have bought the John Farrow house. Grand news that Mile's doing so well after his appendectomy; Dick Haymes took his beautiful wife (she is lovely) out stepping for the first time since the birth of their baby; Alan Ladd, whose popularity is as great as Frank Sinatra's with the bobby socks crowd, had lost so much weight the studio is worried.

A LETTER mailed from San Bernardino, Cal., sent without a signature, asks me if Parsons farm is for sale. Yes, we have put it on the market, reluctantly, because we cannot live that far from town.

This handsome moderne living room set is gloriously, luxuriously comfortable because it's made from top to bottom with the steel coil spring construction so popular before the war. Even though springs have been released, most sets on the market today are half spring or quarter spring or with no springs at all. This set illustrated we repeat is made just like before the war. Notice the graceful moderne lines and unusually rich covering. It's the set you've been waiting for years.

Included are the full size sofa, matching club chair and contrasting channel back wing chair.

By the Associated Press
There has been no major change in any sector, but Allied troops have made further progress west of Pont L'Abbe. All attempts by the enemy to gain the initiative have been frustrated, and counter-attacks have been successfully repelled.

Our striking power grows steadily.

Despite rain and limited visibility over many parts of France yesterday, Allied Air Forces flew 3000 sorties, many of them by aircraft based in France, attacking targets indicated by advanced Air Force and Army headquarters.

In the afternoon medium bombers hit fuel and supply dumps, bridges and other communications targets from Valognes in Cherbourg peninsula to Laval and Donfront about 75 miles behind enemy lines.

One medium bomber is missing.

Fighterbombers, fighters and rocket-firing fighters were active throughout the day.

Their objectives included railway yards at Lemans, Fourgère, Mayenne, Vire, Granville, Folligny, Hyenville, Chartres and Coltainville, and bridge over the Orne near Amaye. East of Caen fighterbombers attacked enemy troops and tanks sheltered in woods and orchards.

Other bombed Seine river ferries, observation posts, radio stations, artillery concentrations and several bridges and railway lines near St. Lo.

In these activities 14 enemy aircraft were destroyed for the loss of seven of ours.

Last night our heavy bombers in great strength attacked concentrations of E and R boats and minesweepers in Boulogne Harbor as well as railway centers at Valenciennes and Lens and fuel dumps at Châtellerauld and Foulard.

Fourteen bombers are missing.

Four enemy aircraft were destroyed and others damaged over France by our night intruders.

divisions had been badly mauled in battle, including the 709th, 711th and 852d.

The German communique said the Nazis drove the Allies back southeast and southwest of Carantan, but admitted Allied gains west and north of Ste. Mere Eglise. It claimed, also, a wedge had been driven into the Allied bridgehead east of the Orne river.

West of newly captured Quineville, on the extreme right wing of the 100-mile beachhead front, American forces advanced a mile or more to reach the Senope river.

Fighting abated somewhat in the Caumont sector where Gen. Montgomery had made his deepest penetration inland early this week. The Germans appeared to be gathering strength there for a counter-attack.

For the first time since the battle of the beachhead started, conservative reports from fighting sectors jibed generally with announcements of the Allied supreme command.

Field dispatches said mobile fighting in the spearheads of the American sector found generals in the front line with their troops, tossing hand grenades and firing rifles side by side with privates. American columns pushing forward sometimes were cut off and had to fight back into contact with main forces.

Allied tactical air forces flew 3000 sorties in 200 missions yesterday in support of the ground forces in Normandy. American and British heavy bombers brought their 24-hour total to more than 5000 sorties.

Photographs of Le Havre after a raid by RAF Lancasters Wednesday night showed German E-boats, lurking there to attack the flanks of the ceaseless transchannel convoys, had disappeared. Before the raid 10 E-boats and motor torpedo boats had been seen.

After the air attack Allied battlehips and cruisers gave the German-held port a pounding.

Another part of the drive to out off Cherbourg was a thrust between the Elie and Vire rivers southeast of Carantan which might be pointed toward St. Jean de Daye on the St. Lo-Carantan highway.

Pilotless Planes

One correspondent telephoned this word picture of the pilotless craft:

"The planes have a distinctive, rhythmic note, giving the effect of a pulsating, low throb. They are much smaller than a Spitfire but their appearance is much the same. "They really are midjet planes. At night they show a distinct yellow glow at the rear and in the light of searchlights streams of thick smoke can be seen being ejected from them.

"Many of them have been observed in daylight and on several occasions RAF fighters, with total disregard of danger, have dived into the ack-ack fire around them in an attempt to make a kill." Bomb-hardened Britons watched the pilotless planes with more curiosity than concern. "Seems 'orrible queer to me," said one 80-year-old woman. "I believe I'd rather have bombs." "Wierdest night I ever had," commented a policeman, keeping a wary ear on a swishing noise in the sky.

GHOSTLY TO BRITONS

"I don't like the idea of nobody in those planes," said a delivery boy. "I don't know why, but it's sorta ghostly. But we'll get used to 'em like we did the rest."

Morrison referred to the pilotless planes as "missiles," indicating they were designed to crash against their objectives rather than drop bombs as orthodox planes do.

He indicated these planes were not expected to return home. He said he "not had full reports on the number of pilotless aircraft destroyed before they could explode" last night.

Morrison explained to Parliament that to refrain from giving the Germans an accurate check on the effectiveness of this new weapon, in the future no information would be released on raids against southern England—an area south of a line from The Wash to the Bristol channel—except for the bare facts of attacks made in this general region.

CHURCHILL WARNING

He said the Germans sent a small number of the un-manned planes against Britain early Tuesday, and increased the number last night and this morning. The first attack was considerable, though a few casualties were caused.

Morrison did not indicate whether fighter planes were being used against the pilotless planes. Neither did he say whether the planes were controlled from continental stations, from aircraft standing outside the area of attack or by guide planes accompanying the explosive craft into the target zone.

His statement confirmed the first hint of a warning Prime Minister Churchill made Feb. 22 that: "There is no doubt the Germans are preparing on the French shore new means of attack on this country either by pilotless aircraft or possibly rockets or both."

A section along the Pas-de-Calais coast has been pounded almost incessantly by British and American air forces since late last year in attacks generally believed to have been aimed at installations for launching or controlling rockets or pilotless planes.

REVEALED BY SWEDES

The Germans already have used in this war a radio-controlled glide-bomb, mainly against ships, guiding it visually by aircraft, which released it at great height, usually several miles from the target.

Radio-controlled airplanes have been used by several nations before the war, mainly as targets for gunners. Their control always has been on a visual basis. The Germans may have evolved some automatic device to set the course before the takeoff or to control the plane remotely.

Bombs Away Call Thrills Newsmen

(William Randolph Hearst, Junior, in a series of four articles of which this is the third, describes his first mission as co-pilot on a B-26 Marauder bomber blasting enemy positions on the battle fields of France.)

By WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST, JUNIOR
(Publisher New York Journal-American)

AT A B-26 MARAUDER BASE IN ENGLAND, June 13—The first thing I did was to look around and there not 30 feet away was another plane.

The air was a little rough, and I thought for sure that this plane's wing which at times overlapped ours, would either touch or get chewed up in our propeller.

I looked across the other side. There was another plane equally close.

At first I wondered whether they were showing off for the visiting correspondents' benefit, but I was assured they were the best wing men in the group and flew close all the time.

We finished circling and now levelled off at 5000 feet. In a little while we passed around London, then headed on down towards the coast which came into view a few minutes later.

HUNDREDS OF BOATS

As we approached it, I could see hundreds of boats lying off one of the English ports all set for the other side.

There were lots of all sizes and shapes headed in all directions, some moving around in little circles and some standing still. Then we were out over the water.

All sense of nervousness left me. Even when I reminded myself that this was no just an ordinary flight across the Channel it seemed to make no impression.

OVER ENEMY TERRITORY

Near the shore we could make out little white diamond marks on the top of trucks. Off to the left was the town of Caen obscured by a combination of low clouds and dust rising from it.

Now we were over enemy territory. There was absolutely no traffic on the roads.

Meister came forward and helped haul us into our flak suits and gave us our helmets.

Anytime now we might be shot at from the ground.

The clouds kept forcing us lower. We were now only 2500 feet up.

These are not our biggest ships but at this altitude they make a darned good target from the ground, especially in groups of six, flying wingtip to wingtip and nose to tail.

About us we glimpsed friendly fighter planes—patrolling the sky. I could see our lead flight below and ahead of us and leaning across Paul, I could also see the low flight to our left.

Suddenly there was another roaring sound above the motors and a draught came through the ship.

I looked back and saw the bomb bay doors open. I stood up between the pilot's seats to get a better view.

As I did, I saw tracers streaking up at the planes ahead.

I heard Paul say, "There goes Number Six. It has a hole through the wing."

BOMBS AWAY

One of the planes in the lead group, the last one on the left, slowly turned out of the formation but under control and started back towards our beachhead.

There was a little town ahead of us and as I watched the lead flight, I saw them release the bombs and then swing round in a wide left turn.

Over the intercommunications radio Shirley was saying, "Hold her as she goes."

I felt the ship jump a little then heard those two fateful words, "bombs away."

Then we too banked steeply to the left behind the lead flight.

As we circled, I looked back at the little town. There were clouds of black smoke billowing up from the center in three separate columns, one for each flight.

THE DOORS CLOSE

The bombardier's voice interrupted my train of thought. "I don't think all bombs got away," he said.

"How many more are left?" asked the pilot.

I looked back and saw Meister open the door to the bomb bay and heard him call back.

"Four are still here."

I had visions of those bombs trailing beneath us and our not being able to release them and leaving to bail out over the field at home.

But while toying with this unpleasant prospect, Shirley's voice came again, "I can still salvo here. Head a little to the right.

"I'll drop them on that bridge."

Paul followed Shirley's directions while I kept my eyes on the snobs in the bomb bay.

Suddenly they dropped into space.

"All bombs away," said Meister and while I watched the bomb doors closed.

Newton Shower for Alison Smith

MRS. HAROLD KELLER of Newton was hostess at a gay afternoon tea and trousseau shower yesterday for Alison Warren Smith who is celebrating Bunker Hill Day by becoming the bride of Capt. Robert Charles Jordan of Abilene, Tex.

Mrs. Keller's home was festive with large bouquets of white flowers from her garden and she piled the gifts into an heirloom 180-year-old chest festooned with ruined white crepe paper and ribbon bows.

After the party Alison and Bob joined her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Willard Smith, her sister Jocelyn (Jolly), and Lt. Jack Gould for a dinner party at The Country Club and then the Pops. Jolly and Lt. Gould will be maid of honor and best man at the wedding and the other attendants arriving today will be Lt. and Mrs. Richard H. Lovell of Alexandria, Va., brother-in-law and sister of the bride, and Seaman 3-c Paul Willard Webster, her cousin.

The wedding will be a small family affair tomorrow afternoon in the gardens surrounding the Smiths' home in Brookline. Rev. Ashley Day Leavitt will officiate. The couple will depart for Miami where Bob is stationed. He has recently returned from serving with the Air Corps in India. Lt. Gould was his roommate over there.

WITH HER FIANCE far away in the Air Corps, pretty Priscilla Stuart of West Newton can't set the date for orange blossoms and old lace but she's doing her share to hasten the happy day by holding down a war job as a radio technician at M. I. T. She is engaged to Warren Emerson Lincoln, Jr. of Waban.

Grace Reed, another pretty bride-to-be, has been on the sick list and regretfully had to miss the wedding in New Jersey last Saturday at which her fiance, PFC J. Carter Inches, was best man. She and Carter have no immediate plans for their own wedding.

BEFORE PACKING up to disperse for the summer, members of the Boston Morning Musicale committee are receiving their new duty assignments for next season, the 17th of this famous concert series which benefits the Boston School of Occupational Therapy.

For the new season, opening Nov. 15 with James Melton as soloist, Mrs. Hatherly Foster will be chairman of hostesses with Mrs. Samuel C. Bennett, v.c.; Mrs. William C. Cox, ushers; Mrs. Robert C. 'Pin Up Girl' Real Grable Hit

By PEGGY DOYLE

"Gams" Grable, who is a synonym for pin up in the lexicon of the nation's best-dressed men, is presently to be seen on the Metropolitan screen in 20th Century-Fox's timely, Technicolorful release, "Pin Up Girl."

This is the picture that is proving the biggest draw at the War Department theaters. Indications are that this gay and gaudy tribute to the servicemen's favorite wallpaper design will move down the civilian takers as well.

And why not? This teaming of star and title is as neat a one as Hollywood has thought up in a month of Sundays, even if the story is flagrantly incidental. Picture this, picture-goers, Miss G. impersonating a girl from Missouri, crashes a welcome-to-a-Gaietyland party in a Manhattan nightclub pretending to be a musical comedy star.

The action moves to Washington, D. C., where at a nightspot big enough for an oldtime Dempsey-Tunney bout, the Skating Vampires, the Condor Brothers and Martha Raye are the teeniest acts for Miss Grable's big impromptu number, "Don't Carry Tales Out of School."

Joe E. Brown, as the nightclub proprietor, Miss Raye, as his jealous star, Charlie Spivak and his band, slick as it is, are but a backdrop for the temptingly fashioned Betty Grable's song-and-dance-and-firly-eyed shenanigans. It's the Pin Up Champ's show all the way, light as a feather and diverting no end.

Margo Tops Gay Revue

By DON WARD

Call her exotic, call her a charmer, or just call her terrific. That's what Margo is as the bright star of the new show at the RKO-Boston. Heading a diversified bill guaranteed to make your June days happier, Miss Margo, in a powder-blue gown, takes songs like "Love, Love, Love," and "Take It Easy" and makes them sound new and different and keeps you wanting more.

She does "G. I. Jive," too, but perhaps the high spot of her cleverly arranged act is her recitation of "This Is It," a resume of our country's history from "way back when up until now." A hushed house heard that one and loved it.

Cute little Anne Rooney who's Universal's newest starlet, went over big with the packed house. She looks as sweet as everybody's kid sister, and has a nice voice (her songs are "It Had to Be You" and Embraceable You," and she can tap-dance like a junior Eleanor Powell).

Of course it's Bobby Sherwood's Orchestra which keeps things jumping right along, from his opening "Elks' Parade," with Gail Landis turning in the vocals, and his show-stopping guitar solo, "My Heart Stood Still," right down the line. It's a grand band.

Tops With Cheese

By MARTHA LEE

OUR INTEREST IN CHEESE is aroused again because of the drop in the point value from 12 to 10. Now we can use it more liberally in everyday dishes. Scrambled eggs, omelets, biscuits and muffins, for example, can be pleasantly varied just by adding a little grated or sliced cheese. Something new and gay in the way of biscuit dough and cheese combinations are Cheese Purses. They are rightlly named purses, for homemakers find these tasty treats make little dent in kitchen food budgets. Yet each biscuit carries valuable wealth in the B vitamins, food iron and good protein content it contains.

CHEESE PURSES

1 cup sifted enriched flour
1 tsp. baking powder
1 tsp. salt
2 to 4 tbsp. shortening
2-3 to 4 cup milk
1 1/2 inch cubes of cheese
Sift together flour, baking powder and salt. Cut or rub in shortening. Add milk to form a soft dough. Turn out lightly on floured board and knead gently 1/2 minute. Roll dough 7/8 inch thick and cut with a 2-inch biscuit cutter. Place 1 cube of cheese on each biscuit round. Seal biscuit over cheese and seal edges well. Place close together on baking sheet and bake in hot oven (450 deg. F.) 10 to 12 minutes. Makes about 2 dozen Cheese Purses.

CHEESE AND EGGS

In making scrambled eggs add a little grated cheese to the mixture of milk and eggs just before it goes into the pan. Cook very slowly so the cheese will melt as the eggs cook. Cheese omelet can be made in two ways. Grated cheese may be added to the omelet mixture just before cooking, or thin slices of cheese may be laid over the omelet in the pan after the omelet is cooked, but before it is rolled and turned out on a hot platter. Cheese muffins a half cup of grated cheese is added to the sifted dry ingredients in a family-size recipe. Cheese puncheons are an easy and delicious biscuit novelty. Pat baking powder biscuit dough out on a board to about 1/4-inch thickness. Spread grated cheese over dough, then roll the dough as in a jelly roll. Cut the roll in half-inch slices and bake like biscuit in a greased pan.

Cheese Purses

TOMATO RABBIT

3 tbsp. butter or margarine
3 tbsp. flour 1 1/2 cups milk
1 1/2 cups canned tomato sauce or canned condensed tomato soup
1/4 tsp. baking soda
8 eggs, slightly beaten
1/4 tsp. salt
1/4 tsp. prepared mustard
Dash cayenne pepper
1/4 lb. American cheese, grated
Toast or crackers
Melt the butter in a double boiler over boiling water. Stir in the flour. When smooth, stir in the milk gradually. When thickened, stir in the tomato sauce and baking soda gradually. Then stir a little of this mixture into the beaten eggs, salt, mustard and cayenne, which have been combined. Return to double boiler, fold in the grated cheese and continue cooking over medium heat until melted, while stirring. Serve on toast or crackers. Makes 6 generous servings. One 1/2 cup, minced onion may be added if desired.

Beauty

NO WONDER the nation's lovelies are glamour gals . . . they bathe in flowers for summertime freshness and beauty with a perfumed oil that gives them all-over lingering charm. Bettina Bolegard, noted New York model, enjoys such a cool, refreshing, floral bath.

Vacation Jobs

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN: We are a group of girls attending a woman's college, and we would very much like to secure some information about summer waitress work at a seashore resort. Would you please help us by giving any suggestions as to how to go about this? M. C.

I believe the best and safest thing for you to do is to get in touch with your nearest Young Women's Christian Ass'n, for they have excellent and reliable employment bureaus. If there isn't a Y. W. C. A. in your town, write to the National Board, General Headquarters of the Y. W. C. A., 600 Lexington ave., New York City, and they will tell you the nearest branch, where you could go for a personal interview and registry. You might also write to the Personnel Director of some hotels known to you and your parents.

I am positive that in this season of service-shortages you won't have the slightest trouble in getting positions as waitresses, but you should be careful that you choose a place that is really concerned with your welfare and comfort.

Floral Bath Refreshing

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE

YOUR BODY is wilting . . . you feel grimy and sticky. Your nerves are on edge from tasks that had to be done despite the heat. You just don't know how you're going to face the evening ahead you've been anticipating . . . You're tired and worn out. Is that the picture?

Try immersing yourself in a cool, fragrant floral oil bath . . . and presto! . . . see how all the cares of day slip away. You relax utterly, luxuriously. Your body temperature goes down as your Spirits soar. And when you emerge you're revived mentally . . . and physically your skin feels cooler and silkier.

And all the while you're enveloped in a lingering floral scent that will trail you through the wonderful evening ahead. That's the delightful summertime bath routine prescribed for you by a brilliant feminine perfumer who knows what us gals like and need these warm, hectic days.

FRAGRANT OIL CLINGS TO YOUR BODY

Particularly delightful as the ideal hot weather bath oil fragrance is the lily of the valley . . . truest floral herald of summer. In this Grecian bath oil . . . the creator has captured the delicate, cool, fresh qualities of the pure white flowers in full bloom. And just as they grow cool and dewy in their soft, green setting of guardian leaves under a shady tree . . . so has this bath oil caught their magical quality to cool and sooth heated tempers and frayed nerves.

A moonlight summer eve and lilies of the valley make a romantic mixture that's irresistible . . . and the scent is just as perfect to wear all day for impeccable daintiness. You only need a few drops to transform your tub into a luxurious, perfumed floral bath . . . for the fine oil spreads quickly over the water surface . . . and as you emerge . . . the fragrant oil clings to your body and stays there . . . softening it, giving it precious, light, protective moisture . . . and perfuming it. Remember, salt-water swimming and sunning . . . even frequent soap-and-water tubs or showers . . . dry out your skin . . . and an oil bath will protect your body. Could anything be lovelier?

For the name of this all-over floral bath oil fragrance, phone the Beauty Dept., LIBerty 4000, or write me, care of the Boston Evening American, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Black Lace Useful

By BETTINA BEDWELL

FROM now on until September, every girl who goes out in the evenings will want a sheer, dressy dress, and there is nothing quite so smart and attractive at the same time as a black lace dress.

This summer, short black lace dresses are going to be very chic as well as being very beautiful. And it pays to have a really good one, because this is the kind of dress that can be worn a long, long time.

A model like the Sophie dress in our sketch, is just perfect for the slim figure. Sophie makes this dress of black lace and gives it a very simple blouse with short sleeves, which is worn over a black foundation with a band of pink satin at the top, the satin emerging in a pink bow on the bosom. The skirt, over black, has a crisp flaring peplum which makes a slim waistline seem slimmer.

Fashion

DRESSED AT EASE for casual entertaining . . . and informal warm weather enjoyment . . . is Columbia star Janet Blair in these chaste slacks of rayon with the texture of linen. The yellow, blue and red blouse . . . ruffled edged shoulders and V-neck for smart details . . . give dramatic color contrast. And isn't the Chinese coolie sun hat, which fastens under the chin, a knockout for chic?—R. M.

My Day

By Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt

WASHINGTON, Wednesday—The all-day meeting which was held here yesterday, I felt accomplished its objective. The organizations represented agreed that they would build up a roster of available women in various fields and this roster would be made obtainable to government officials.

They decided to appoint national and international committees which will now, and in the future, present and consider postwar problems.

LAST EVENING I went to the Women's National Press Club dinner, where Mrs. Elizabeth May Craig turned over the presidency of the club to Miss Edith Caydon.

There is a nice little ceremony which takes place at these annual dinners when the club president, who has enjoyed the use of a lovely silver bowl given to the club some years ago by Cora Rigby, turns the bowl over to the incoming president and receives in its place a copy which she herself retains.

This year, owing to the war, it was impossible to give a duplicate of the bowl, but another old silver piece was found and will remain one of Mrs. Craig's most-treasured possessions.

THE SPEAKER of the evening was Mr. George E. Sterling of the Federal Communications Commission, in charge of what might be called the FBI service of the air, who gave us an interesting and instructive talk. I realized again that every occupation has its own vocabulary. And I hope that other people were more familiar with some of the words which Mr. Sterling used than I was.

Today I had some people lunch with me, and some more people are coming in for tea and dinner. Tonight I am off for a long week-end in the country. Copyright, 1944, King Features Synd., Inc.

NEW YORK, June 16—Manhattan Glitter: Elaine Barrie Barrymore, who has exiled herself from Hollywood, at the 18 Club with—of all chaperones—her mother. . . Eddie Garr, who does a satire on Sinatra in his Roxy stage show stint, is meeting the usual fate of Sinatra—mimics. He's snowed under a pile of anonymous letters threatening death, or worse, if he doesn't stop kidding "our Frankie." . . Hildegarde is taking Spanish lessons, very privately. It depends on Moss Hart's revue in which Webb is supposed to have the lead with Gertrude Lawrence and Beatrice Lillie.

NELSON EDDY has been huddling at Metro concerning playing in Rudolf Friml's "Kismet," which will be filmed in Technicolor. . . Bob Hope will go to Del Mar to help Bing Crosby open the track there. . . Because of the fine work Steve Crane did in a Western, Columbia is giving him a leading role in the Rita Hayworth-Janez Blair musical, "Tonight and Every Night." . . Brenda Marshall has returned to Twentieth Century Fox and is back on the payroll. . . Alex D'Arcy and Joan Lawrence, a Metro cutie, are voicing. . . The drama editor of a western newspaper wrote a bad review on "The Uninvited." Several days later he wrote a further column telling of the many complaints he has received from readers and Paramount on his unfavorable review, and to appease everyone concerned he printed a recipe for cooking carrots as contained in a Paramount publicity release. . . John Payne has been transferred into the Ferry Command.

GEORGE BALANCHINE is working on a new ballet for the Ballet Russe, to be called "New Orleans." . . Although the dance team of Maurice and Cordoba are with the "Winged Victory" cast, (Sgt. Having lunch with Director George Cukor, who is doing the picture, Charles Russell suggested that they do a dance in the screen version. "You could even name the dance after yourself," said Charlie. "You know, sort of a Cukor-rachal!"

George Holland

Boston After Dark

ON THE TRAIL of a 14-year-old Boston schoolgirl by the name of Ann E. Short, of Church st., South End, this column's conductor was given an amazing insight to a Boston school which, by long odds, is the oversigned's nomination as the most representative "melting pot" in America. . . The school is the Abraham Lincoln School in Fayette st. . . It includes in its school population children of 35 nationalities. . . First, let us tell the brief story of Miss Short, which will be continued later.

WE HAVE BEEN HEARING for months of a South End school girl who has a voice which gives promise of developing into the kind of soprano which thrust Deanna Durbin and Judy Garland into international fame. . . The owner of the voice, young Miss Short, was described as "beautiful." . . (After taking a look at a snapshot of the child, this is highly credible) . . . But Ann was out of the city and excused from classes when we paid a call at her school, where she is a good student and very popular with her schoolmates.

A verdict of her talent will have to wait for another column. . . But this corner found a highly interesting subject in the school where the talented young miss from the South End is star vocalist.

THE LINCOLN SCHOOL'S population is almost entirely composed of second-generation Americans. . . More than 90 per cent of the pupils have parents who migrated here within the past two decades. . . Principal William J. Cunningham estimates that the student body is divided as follows: One-fifth of the pupils are descended from parents of Chinese origin; one-fifth are colored Americans, and three-fifths are from antecedents of Near East nativity.

FOR A VIEW of democracy at work, and the moulding of future citizens, this corner can recommend a visit to the classrooms of the well-named school in Fayette st. which carries 800 pupils from kindergarten through the ninth grade and supervises the giving out of a direct answer to intolerance—and a simple answer at that. . . The answer consists of nothing more than becoming well acquainted with the fellow or girl whose skin-color is different, whose race is different, whose religion may be so (and no one cares), and whose reactions and instincts are as those of humankind—the same. . . And if any school in the Boston school system can rank the morale of the Abraham Lincoln School, this envoy will be pleased to have the opportunity to observe it. (If the foregoing reads "slow," please excuse it. . . We were thrilled.)

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY: The Rhumba Casino, in the Fox and Hounds, is the nearest Boston approach to New York's famous "Stork Club." . . The smooth, danceable playing of Wilson Lewis' marvelous band (this column's longstanding pet in dance bands) is as good, we think, as Ernie Hols' crew when it was at its best. . . The food is a delight, and the combination of Eddie Davis, the boss, and Walter Finn, the leading-man-type greeter, is new enough to the combination of Sherman Ball's and Jack Spooner to suit Bostonians. . . The cool, atmospheric, cozy Rhumba Casino occupies what used to be the chapel of the Slater mansion, which—as Boston knows—is now the Fox and Hounds. . . Overlooking the Charles river basin, the Fox and Hounds dining room is beyond compare for a room-with-a-view in all America.

Ortiz-Bolvin Bout To Help Veterans

By JACK CONWAY

NEW CONTRACTS have been filed with the boxing commission by Matchmaker Eddie Mack of the Callahan A. C. for the 10-round bout between Manuel Ortiz of Mexico City, world's bantamweight champion, and Larry Bolvin of Providence, New England featherweight champion, which will be held at National League Park on June 29. They contain the provision that 10 per cent of the gross receipts less federal and state taxes will be given to the Disabled Veterans Fund of the American-Record-Sunday Advertiser.

Manuel, Bolvin, the Callahan A. C. and Bob Quinn of the Braves are eager to help the Disabled Veterans Fund. Now that the invasion is on there will be more need than ever for funds to assist our fighting men who are injured or who become ill.

While interviewing Commander Jack Dempsey during his war bond tour of New England, I told him that for years I considered him the most deadly puncher in the world. I felt that if he had met Joe Louis and John L. Sullivan when they were at their fistic peaks and he was in the height of his ring glory that he would have won by knockouts. I added that Dempsey has lost his title as the hardest hitter. The greatest blow ever delivered was the invasion punch of the Allied armies in France. It was the punch that will pave the way to victory and for the return home of our American fighting men.

The purchase of war bonds will help make this triumph come more quickly, while boxing shows like the one between Ortiz and Bolvin will help add comfort to the lives of the returning heroes.

As has been its custom, sports have gone all out for every worthy service charity.

Russ Murray's Raynham dog track, which has already raised $8000 for the Disabled Veterans Fund, will stage another race for the fund tonight. Russ has set a goal of $20,000 for his track.

The Ortiz-Bolvin match and a later bout between the winner and Willie Pep, world's featherweight champion, will further enrich the Disabled Veterans Fund.

Dorchester Bond Rally

MANY PROMINENT athletes will help to make a success the war bond rally of Damon Lodge K. of P. No. 12, which will be held at Wellington Manor, Wellington Hill and Morton st., Dorchester, on Monday night. Jack Gordon tells me that veterans of this war, WACS and WAVES will also appear at the rally.

These community bond drive rallies have already raised millions of dollars for the fifth war bond drive. The Dorchester rally will add many thousands of dollars to the grand total.

Your purchase of a bond will help Uncle Sam send more B-29's over Japan.

This writer, like some other newspapermen, knew the secret of the B-29's for some time. We knew their objective was Japan, that they could fly higher than any Fortress that has yet been built and do greater damage to objectives thousands of feet below while they remained out of range of enemy guns and planes.

American kids and American ingenuity have taken the offensive on all battle fronts and will not be stopped.

Random Shots at Target

WHEN WARRANT Officer "Bibber" McCoy was in Boston with Com. Jack Dempsey, he told me he has discovered in the Coast Guard one of the greatest heavyweight wrestlers he has ever seen. "Bibber" said the youngster is the dream athlete. He has physical size, fine appearance, power, ability and exceptional intelligence. In post war days, McCoy plans to bring his "find" to Boston and have him appear in mat bouts under the direction of Paul Bowser.

Dempsey told me he looks for a great sports boom when the war ends. People are more interested in athletics than ever, said the former title holder, and the various branches of the armed forces will furnish the necessary champions.

Giants Next for Tribe

By BILL GRIMES

There's no big league game here today, but tomorrow the Braves will open a two-day four-game series with the New York Giants at the Allston Wigwam.

The Braves and the Giants are listed for twin-bills tomorrow and Sunday. The Coleman didn't do well on their junkies to New York, Brooklyn and Philadelphia, but they expect to make a better showing during this short home stay.

The Red Sox are in Washington for a four-game series with the Senators. They are playing tonight and will engage in another night game tomorrow and close their visit with a double-header Sunday.

During their home stay, the Red Sox moved right up on the heels of the league-leading St. Louis Browns. They swept through the Yankees and the Athletics for eight straight victories. Tex Hughson's win over the A's yesterday made it nine in a row for the Croninmen, equalling the record set by the Browns at the start of the season.

HUGHSON AT PEAK

Hughson was in rare form again yesterday. He has now won nine and has been charged with only two defeats.

Tex gave up only six hits and was never in any serious trouble, coasting home after the Red Sox's big sixth inning.

Joe Cronin predicts that Frank "Red" Barrett will be a great asset. He was very favorably impressed by Barrett's relief pitching against the A's. With Barrett to take some of the relief load off "Iron Mike" Ryba, the Red Sox can be very troublesome from here in.

Dots and Dashes

Due to injuries Manager Cronin was obliged to break up his winning combination. . . . Rus Christopher plunked Pete Fox on the leg yesterday and the veteran outfielder gave way to Tom McBride. . . . Hal Wagner, who is also suffering from a bad leg, was to have caught "Tex" Hughson. . . . His pins were not up to the assign-

Double Buys New Uniforms

HOLLYWOOD, June 16 (AP)

—The Sacramento Solons of the Pacific Coast League will be sporting new uniforms soon, thanks to Jake Suytar, their first baseman, and the generosity of Bill Freelove, owner of a Los Angeles professional football team.

Suytar slammed a double off a sign 400 feet from home plate, a feat for which Freelove had promised a $25 war bond. Freelove added $1000 to the award, however, instructing the team to use it for new outfits.

ment. Bill Conroy, who hadn't seen any action since the Athletics were here earlier in the season, got the nod from Cronin. . . . George Metkovich has been suffering from a stomach ailment for three days. . . . He was very sick just before yesterday's game, but insisted upon playing. . . . Joe Rullo, who played second for the A's, is off the sandlots. . . . He was discovered by Red Smith, baseball writer for the Philadelphia Record. . . . He came up with Connie Mack's farm system. . . . And, his side line is barbering (with scissors). . . . He keeps his hand in by cutting hair for his teammates.

While Roland Robinson's "bull gang" was taking the canvas off the infield, "Muddy" Rivers gave himself the leg by tripping over first base and was buried under the canvas. . . . Like all good Roxbury battlers, "Muddy" refused to take the count and crawled back to his feet.

DOERR IN TROUBLE

Bobby Doerr pulled the "Charley horse" which has been troubling him for a week, when he slid back into first base to avoid being doubled up when Cronin lined to Hall.

The attendance was a new low for the season, 770 cash customers and 207 servicemen. . . . Lum Harris isn't any pushover at the plate. . . . He's one of the best hitters in the league. . . . And, although the Red Sox beat him 5 to 1, Harris allowed only six hits.

Giants Gain 3d Place Tie; Nats Slam Yankees Again

The New York Giants defeated the Brooklyn Dodgers, 9-2, at night to move into a tie with the Cincinnati Reds for third place, and Mel Ott smashed his 17th homer in the first inning with two on.

Washington made it three out of four over the New York Yankees, with Mickey Haefer outpitching Joe Page, 3-2. The Senators scored all their runs in the sixth inning, abetted by Roberto Ortiz' triple with two on.

Rookie Paul O'Dea's single in the 11th inning scored Ori Hockett to give Cleveland a 3-2 win over Detroit. Joe Heving, who twirled the last four innings, was the winner and Paul Trout, going all the way, the loser. The victories advanced the Senators and Indians a couple of notches into a fourth-place tie.

Pittsburgh defeated Cincinnati, 1-0, scoring the lone run in the ninth on Bob Elliott's single scoring Jeep Handley. Max Butcher bested Tomas de la Cruz, although the Red Cuban allowed but four hits.

The Philadelphia Phillies came from behind twice to win from the Boston Braves, 5-4. Fred Muller's single with two out scored Jimmy Wessels, who had doubled to start the eighth. Jim Tobin, in relief, was charged with the loss and Ken Raffensberger received the win.

The St. Louis and Chicago clubs in both leagues were not scheduled.

Seek Cy Young

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., June 16 (AP)—Efforts are being made to lure the great Cyrus (Denton Tecumseh) Young, now 77, out of retirement.

Frank Peckingspaugh, member of the Three-Quarter Century Club Baseball League, has invited Young to come here next winter to play in the Oldsters' League.

Young, who compiled a record of 511 victories against 315 losses in his 22 seasons in the majors, could qualify as the league's age minimum is 75.

Newton-Holyoke Tilt Hard to Figure

By MIKE GILLOOLY

You can take batting averages, fielding records, seasonal performances, pitching marks and all other statistics and toss them into the scrap heap with no help in attempting to solve the riddle of the State Baseball Championship to be contested at 6 o'clock, tomorrow afternoon, at Fenway Park with Newton and Holyoke High Schools on the bat lines.

As has been evident in the four qualifying rounds, anything can happen in this title tournament conducted by the Schoolboy Writers' Ass'n.

With the exception of a home run, every sort of play imaginable has occurred in the 11 contests of the eliminations. Outfield flies have been dropped. Squeeze plays have worked—and haven't, too. As Medford well knows. Two undefeated records have been smashed. One team sacrificed a man to second base while trailing by two runs. Players have stolen bases, scored from second on infield outs, started minor fights and probably, most common of all, they've committed ERRORS.

Every team in the tourney, including Newton, has blown up for at least an inning. This final clash could be the most one-sided affair ever in schoolboy history, or it could go scoreless long beyond the dinner hour. It's that unusual touch and the unexpected that creates so much interest in the schoolboys.

Holyoke High, winner of the western bracket of the title fight, will move into Fenway with a record of 12 straight victories, including its three tournament tests. Coach Bill Sullivan will be introducing a fast, clever, smart well-coached nine that can powder the bill in a fashion comparable to the heaviest hitting club in scholastic ranks.

The Paper City outfit boasts a truly outstanding ball player in Capt. Joe Soskovic, pitcher, catcher, lead-off batter and everything else a team could ask for in a leader. He was catching but moved into the box to gain credit for whipping Ludlow in the opener of the western carnival; he blanked Westfield for 10 innings in the semi-final round and then went on a four-for-five batting spree in pacing his team to a victory in the final over Amherst High.

Soskovic, with allegiance sworn to the Brooklyn Dodgers, will be pitching tomorrow for Holyoke, whipping his speed ball into his hard hitting battery mate, Ed McMahon, who'll be shifting from his regular berth in the field to handle the slants of his captain. The pair top the team in batting with averages posted above the .450 mark.

Coach Jeff Jones of Newton has the problems of picking the pitcher, either Joe "Moose" McManus, a southpaw with loads of control, or Wes Hays, an undefeated right-hander. Hays would be the logical choice against eight right-handed batters in the Holyoke lineup but it's hard to overlook the stellar performances of McManus who has pitched the Garden City to the Suburban crown (against Arlington), the opening tourney triumph (Braintree) and into this final (Medford).

The Jim O'Leary trophy will be awarded the winner for a year and there'll be a permanent trophy, as well, for the champion.

Another Semi-Pro to Join Boston Braves

PHILADELPHIA, June 16 (AP)—Signing of two stars of the Suburban Main Line (semi-pro) Baseball League by major league clubs was announced last night.

Allie Gwynn, a catcher signed by the Boston Braves, will report to Indianapolis of the American Association this week-end. Outfielder Ollie Shuckman, signed by the Phillies, goes to Bradford, Pa., of the Pony League.

Dodger Tryouts At Holyoke

HOLYOKE, June 16 (AP)—Branch Rickey, Jr., director of the Brooklyn Dodgers' minor league club, announced today that a three-day tryout for New England major league aspirants would be held in Holyoke, June 26, 27, 28.

One hundred or more boys from the six states were expected to show their wares to a Dodger staff of coaches at Mass-Kennie Field. All of the boys invited already have been looked over by Dodger scouts.

Kelley Sues Mother-in-Law For 500 Marathon Trophies

In some 20 years of long-distance running, little Johnny Kelley, once of Arlington and now of West Acton, collected more than 500 trophies for Marathon feats and now he charges in Middlesex court that his mother-in-law won't give them to him.

That was the burden of the bill of equity he brought today against Mrs. Celie Knowles of Chelmsford St., Arlington, mother of Kelley's late wife, in which he sought to recover the trophies as well as wedding gifts for him and his late bride.

Judge Forte granted Kelley's request for a temporary restraining order to prevent Mrs. Knowles from disposing of the articles and directed her to answer Kelley's petition by Monday.

Kelley and her daughter, the late Mary Knowles Kelley, were

After his wife's death in 1942, Kelley entered the Army and served until last August, when he was given an honorable discharge.

After his discharge, his bill claims, he visited Mrs. Knowles and asked her for the wedding gifts and athletic trophies but she refused to give them to him.

The bill continued that the gifts and trophies could not be replaced because of their sentimental value and asked that the court establish his right to them.

ANOTHER MATTY—Al Mamaux, left, oldtime pitcher, gives autographed ball to Jimmy Mathewson, 16-year-old office boy, winner of baseball contest in plant where Mamaux is recreation head. Youngster proved as expert winning contest as his namesake was throwing strikes past big leaguers.
